Axo Group is the Fin-tech company providing the personal finance app Defero! The app provides consumers personal credit insight for free. The Defero app has had tremendous success since it was introduced 4 years ago and we are now looking to scale and take it to the next level. To do this we need more talented developers!

If your drive is to simplify and write clean functional code, and like doing so around awesome people in a nice office, please read on!

The Team

You will become a member of a Product & Tech team located in Oslo, building a multi-language, highly scalable, cloud native, multi market personal finance solution, with no legacy code.

Your responsibilities will grow to match your abilities and experience.

Your roleWorking in a multifunctional team with high influence on how the Defero platform is builtBuild reusable code and libraries for future use, collaborating with the teamIdentify opportunities and implement solutions to improve engineering productivity

Skills and qualifications

We expect well-structured readable code. We work with the latest technologies, using a modular monolith and several micro services deployed on AWS ECS.

👉 You might not have any experience with programming in Python or Go, but you can transition from a comfortable language to write code in a readable and easy writing way. Services/APIs and the experience of your experience with micro services and AWS is a plus.

It is important for our Product team that everybody feels responsible for following personally assigned tasks through to completion and taking ownership over development tasks and continuous improvements.

Experience and proven competencies are more important to us than a diploma or a formal education.

It is important for our team that everybody feels responsible for all aspects of our business. We are open and honest, expect all to make decisions and try to be best at recovering from failure as opposed to being afraid to fail or pointing fingers. We have an experimental culture where we are considerate and trust everyone to have our common interests close to heart. The Defero team currently employs 12 people but we are also part of a bigger Product and Tech team in the Axo group with about 40 people in total. What We Offer Dedicate your work to a long-term goal and see your results grow Short time from idea to execution – we have daily releases Young and informal team Well-spaced, cool office space located in Oslo near Nationaltheatret station The IT equipment you want and need to do your work Get on the inside of a performance driven and private equity owned company with hairy goals and international ambitions

PS! We are only looking for candidates within our region. Relocation support is not provided.
