thinking. You enjoy teamwork and bring experience in the coordination of team tasks and members. You have a high degree of initiative and self-organization and ideally have knowledge of the energy industry value chain (E2E). About the department To implement the energy transition in practice, adjustments are also taking place permanently in customer processes. These are driven by regulation, legislation and, above all, by our own aspiration to deliver an excellent customer experience. We are using the opportunities offered by digitization as an opportunity to continuously develop ourselves in a more innovative, efficient and customer-focused way. Together with you, we will drive digital transformation and implement our vision of holistic end-to-end (E2E) responsibility and process efficiency for an excellent customer experience, also with our internal partners. We provide the freedom to contribute your own ideas and experiences, test new approaches and lead our organization into the future with us. In our team we orchestrate and coordinate E2E testing activities within the B2C organization. We provide our colleagues with cross-functional expertise in technical and functional quality issues. Our activities range from classic test project management to consulting in the creation of test concepts for new and further developments. Contact Interested?
