Sell here my Sabb 9-3 V6 that has long served well. The car is still conditionally drivable, but it loses coolant on some hoses. Also in general I would rather say the car should serve as a spare parts store, but you could bring it back to life with 2500-3000€ if you are willing to give up some comfort. I would rate the interior with 4/10. The odometer is already for about a year, estimated mileage is just under 300,000km.

- Here is a small list of defects that immediately come to mind:
- Clutch is due soon
 - Speed indicator and speedometer defective
 - Engine control light is spinning
 - Coolant loss
 - Three small rust spots on hood and wheel arches
 - Various optical damages in the interior

Otherwise, the Saab still runs perfectly and is occasionally used by me. Cylinder head and gasket are in good order, it has not run hot, because if it is moved, it has always been supplied with sufficient fluid. Chassis and underbody, as well as engine are in my opinion in good condition, the last oil change is not 5000km ago.

I think the price is commensurate with the condition, just due to the fact that this model is dying out and parts are rare and expensive.

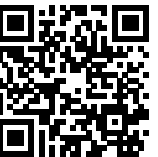

Due to the low price, it is possible to use the car as a spare parts store. The car is in good condition on the outside, but the engine is in poor condition.
