I've been using this iPad as a home multimedia device, even though I bought it for work. It never found its place in my working routine, which is why I am selling it. It is in excellent condition: no dents, no scratches. Apple Pencil is a really cool addition to the iPad, too!

The only "problem" with it is that the TouchID is not working; Apple diagnostics determined it is a factory defect (I have the transcript of my communication with them as a proof), but fixing it is essentially just replacing the entire device. I thought it was not worth it, from an environmental point of view. The on/off button works perfectly, however. It is solely a sensor defect.

Unfortunately, I no longer have the original packaging. It was in a storage room which got flooded last year due to a pipe malfunction. Had to throw away many.
