We have the Motorola MicroTAC. Launched in 1989 this phone was truly revolutionary not only because of its size but also because of its flip design. Mobiles could now be genuinely carried with you. The Motorola MicroTAC was the world's first flip mobile. Here a moveable plate opens to reveal the keypad and provide a mouthpiece to talk into. However, although people thought that the flip plate contained the microphone, in fact it didn't. Equally, the extendable aerial was also fake, being simple a piece of aerial shaped plastic. This latter feature was included because market research had told the Motorola designers that users expected mobiles to have external aerials! The MicroTAC had both an internal microphone and aerial.

Introduced in 1989

ETACS (analogue)

Leuk voor de verzamelaar van oude mobiele telefoons.
