The Business Unit Early Life Nutrition is providing healthy and cost-effective nutrition to millions of babies and toddlers each day. It's a wonderful privilege and, at the same time, a huge responsibility that depends on the expert sourcing of a wide range of raw ingredients. To ensure our ongoing success in this area, we currently seek candidates with advanced specifications experience and knowledge to apply for the important role of Senior Global Specifications Manager Packaging.

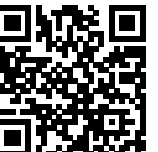

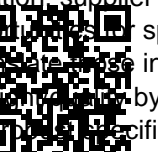

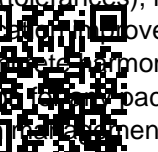

As Senior Manager you will manage the specifications part of the packaging material portfolio globally. You are accountable to ensure full food safety and regulatory compliance of the Packaging materials worldwide to ensure highest quality standards of finished products for sensitive customers. Your role represents a unique opportunity to combine technical expertise, global vision and business acumen within a very challenging but inspiring category.

Central to this opportunity, your role is to cooperate closely with other departments and stakeholders including R&D, Product, Quality and Purchasing. This requires you to convince and engage at a senior level as we seek to accelerate the pace of specification optimization by defining new ways of working. To this end you will be a key part of a new Packaging Specifications Management team designed to enhance the highest levels of specification quality and processes in a cross-functional environment.

Additional responsibilities include:

Drive specification upgrading process: functional specification, supplier SPC (tolerances), new regulatory requirements, etc. - anticipate and clarify opportunities for specification improvement
 - Develop complex technical security specifications and translate these into operational harmonization
 - Develop cross functional suppliers - first time right delivery by developing pack specifications
 - Drive reduced process waste value chain by executing robust specification management.
